

Development studies and climate change: ways forward for curriculum building

EADI 2021 Online Workshop for Academic Coordinators of Development Studies Programmes

Note: The program is based on CET time

Thursday 02 December 2021 Presentations and Discussion

10:30-11:00 Introduction

11:00-11:45 Stefano Moncada, Senior lecturer and convener of the MA programme in Research on Islands and Small States (University of Malta) – What can development studies learn from teaching programmes on small islands?

14:00-14:45 Mandy Sadan, Programme leader of the MASc in Global Sustainable Development (Global Sustainable Development department, Warwick University) – Challenges of trans-disciplinarity and practical applications

14:45-15:30 World Café (1/2), discussion on selected topics on climate change and development

15:45-16:30 Networking event, presentation of the EADI network, possibility to network for participants

Friday 03 December 2021 Presentations and Discussion

09:30-09:45 Welcome back

09:45-11:00 World Café (2/2), discussion on selected topics on climate change and development

11:30-12:15 Lars Kåre Grimsby, Programme leader for the BSc programme in International Environment and Development Studies (Norwegian University of Life Sciences, Noragric) – Successfully blending development and environmental studies in development curriculum

12:15-13:00 John Morton, Professor of Development Anthropology and leader of the Climate Change, Agriculture and Natural Resources development programme (Natural Resources Institute, University of Greenwich) – Critical reflections from NRI's experience on field projects: what should be expected from graduate students?

13:00-13:15 Concluding remarks